President Roosevelt is now engaged in chewing the Bowen.

Pass the joyful news along that the last dividend of the Standard Oil squeeze was one dollar larger this year than at the same time last.

A Vergennes man got intoxicated on a concoction of vinegar, water and sugar the other day and the horse he was driving dropped dead. The wonder is that the vinegar jug himself did not drop dead.

The newspaper cuts of the new Rutland depot show up so well that we can't help thinking how a similar structure would look on Depot Square in this city. Would that it were not an air castle.

While the Methodist clergymen of this district are scratching around on their meagre salaries it may be some comfort for them to know that the presiding elder in the Burlington district is to get $1,900 this year.

The students and officials of Norwich University are not the only ones to regret the coming departure of Major H. W. Hovey who has been ordered to join his regiment. The Vermont National Guard and a large number of friends throughout the state are among the number who will feel a loss that his connection with Vermont affairs is to be severed. For while he has been building up the military branch of the university in Northfield, he has given much time to the good of the military arm of the state, besides fulfilling such duties and obligations that fall to a person in his position. As a mustering officer in 1898, when the Guard went South and more recently as an inspecting officer of the same body of men he has taken much interest in the organization.

SECOND CLASS SALES.

Montpelier Licenses Now Have a Set of Rules.

As the result of a conference between the city grand juror of Montpelier, the state's attorney and the license commissioners of Montpelier, a set of rules governing second class liquor sales are posted in the second class places of Montpelier yesterday. The main provisions of these rules are as follows:
 Permission is given to the dealers to ship goods in answer to telephone or in writing, but the shippers are held responsible for the legality of such sales as regards prohibited persons. Consignments of goods can be sent by a third party on a written order, but no goods can be sold on printed forms or orders no matter how signed, no verbal orders read from a notebook can be accepted from truckmen or expressmen, nor can such parties or any one else act as an agent or collector for a licensee in soliciting orders or getting pay for them.
 In shipping goods to Barre the common carriers who were in business prior to 1905 must be used, and in this case the Central Vermont, the Montpelier and Wells River railroad and Nelson's express are specified. The licensees are forbidden to sell to individuals in unreasonable quantities, or in cases where they think the liquor is wanted for redistribution or use other than personal, or to sell in large quantities at reduced rates that the party buying may redistribute for a profit, nor to sell in large quantities at regular rates, whereby so doing the licensee is likely to become a wholesaler.

THE STORY OF AN UNWISE MAN.

A news item now going the rounds of the Vermont press states that a Weston, Vt., man lost $500.00 by the burning of his house recently. He had been saving the money to buy a farm and, not having confidence in banks, had kept the money in the house.
 No State in the Union has fewer bank failures than Vermont. Our banks, as a rule, are well and conservatively managed. Yet even in Vermont we occasionally see items similar to the one quoted above.
 Perhaps the man with a little surplus money will sometime learn that the safest place for his money is a well managed bank. If there are any people in this vicinity who deposit their money under the floor, or in the traditional stocking, we would suggest that they change their deposit to the Granite Savings Bank and Trust Company, Barre, Vt. Interest paid on savings deposits. Correspondence invited.

MAYOR WANTS CONFERENCE.

of art, and hanging it in the council chamber, and he offered a motion to that effect. Alderman Adie disagreed with Alderman Sowden that it was an advertisement. It was not to be compared with an advertisement of a sausage or a cabbage head. Alderman Albisetti objected to the acceptance of the portrait on the ground that if once begun there would be no end to it.

It was voted to accept with the artist's conditions that it be always hung in the council chamber. Aldermen Milne, Burke, McKenzie and Adie voting in favor, and Sowden and Albisetti against it.

Mayor Barclay expressed his pleasure at having the portrait in the room and hoped portraits of all the other mayors would find a place there.

The street commissioners were authorized to make a resurvey of Perry street before setting any curbing.

W. D. Kidder presented a bill of $17.50 for cleaning out his cellars at North Barre which were flooded by the break in the Main street sewer. Referred to street committee.

A building permit was granted Homer Croteau to change barn on Cottage street to a house; to L. M. Williams to build an automobile house on Jefferson street; to Will Page to remove barn on Prospect street, provided it be with iron. James McDonald of John street presented a bill for work done on repairing his sewer which was frozen up because of negligence on the part of the water department last winter. It was voted the city pay half.

A representative of the Healey Sewer Cleaning Machine company was present and explained the merits of cleaning sewers with his machine. Referred back to street committee.

Richard Gibson wanted to know what action the water committee had taken on a water extension to his place on Perrin Hill. The committee stated it had not completed its investigation.

Overseer-of-the-Poor Shurtleff wanted some alcohol for the poor. The matter was referred to the charity committee on the statement of Alderman Albisetti that the city and state's attorney thought he could keep it for the purposes required.

The property committee was authorized to fix up the surroundings of the spring on the city farm.

Alderman McKenzie brought up the matter of moving the barn on the school lot at the rear of the fire station. Milne objected to putting a lot of lean-tos on the city lot, and McKenzie asked if he thought it best to keep the city tools, scattered all about the city, or have one place where they could all be found? Milne thought a new building should be constructed and Sowden moved that the property and street committee be instructed to bring in plans. It was so voted.

At the request of Alderman Sowden the application of Henry Frenier for a restaurant license was taken from the table and voted on. It was granted, only two aldermen voting for it, Sowden and Burke.

The sum of $500 was appropriated to the use of the overseer of the poor.
